

Jury Drawn For April Term Court

13 CASES APPEAR ON COURT CALENDAR

For the first time since the January, 1937 term of Circuit court, a jury was drawn for the April term, beginning April 12, 1938. This is a remarkable record, and one that seems almost incredible.

Thirteen cases appear on the calendar. Two are criminal cases, three jury civil and two non-jury civil cases, and six chancery cases.

SCHOOL MOVIE A SUCCESS

Monday evening the High school auditorium was packed to capacity as approximately 700 parents and students gathered to see the movies of the school in operation, which had been taken the week before. By this means, those interested in the school were able to get a picture of a cross-section of the school in operation. No attempt was made to "dress the picture up" but it merely presented a typical day in the Grayling schools.

With Supt. Poor at the microphone, each scene was explained as it was shown on the screen. Classes were shown going about their daily routine in both the South and North side schools and a glimpse was given of the extra-curricular activities which are carried on during the year.

The money which was realized by the school is to be turned over to the local Red Cross fund to be used in the community.

Palm Sunday Is 'Courting' Day In South Italy

Palm Sunday, important in Christian observance of the Lenten season, is the day to court your sweetheart in Spezzano Albanese, Calabria. In this section of southern Italy bashful swains act much like they do on St. Valentine's day in this country.

Unattached young men and eligible bachelors are given the unusual opportunity of serenading their sweethearts in broad daylight, the custom being about 600 years old. Attired in finery, the youths assemble at the main piazza, carrying instead of palms—bouquets of laurel blossoms.

They move in a procession, making the rounds of some 30 balconies, all of which are strewn with carnations and in which are girls garbed in picturesque pleated skirts and ruffled blouses. The young men sing their serenades and if their attentions are welcome they receive carnations.

Results Of Township Elections Monday

FREDERIC, LOVELLS GET NEW SUPERVISORS

Slip Candidates Fail To Upset Nominees

It was a very quiet election last Monday, in all townships unless it may have been in Frederic. In the latter place George Horton routed the present incumbent, Lyle Dunckley 105 to 89. Also Percy Harmer, the present clerk of Frederic lost by the narrow margin of 89 to 83.

In Beaver Creek, where there were democratic and republican tickets, the former party elected all candidates.

In Grayling township, Mrs. Flora Skingley, running on slips, lost to Clare Madsen by only four votes. This is the first time Madsen ever ran for office, according to reports.

Supervisor Edgar Caid of Lovells was not a candidate at this election. He will be succeeded by Ray Doby. John Kellogg was a slip candidate for supervisor.

A complete tabulated report of how the several townships voted follows:

Dedicate Masonic Temple April 28

GRAND OFFICERS TO ASSIST IN CEREMONIES

Elaborate plans are being made for the dedication of our new Masonic Temple that is fast nearing completion. The date will be April 28th, at which time Grand Master Parker and the other grand officers will be present and assist in the ceremonies.

The Grand officers and local officers and members may well be proud of this new edifice for it is the most beautiful and attractive Masonic Temple in Michigan north of Bay City.

Members of the lodge have been busy, working like beavers, laying floors and helping in other construction work in order to get the building ready for dedication. There is still much to be done, and Master Ernest Larson urges the members to give as much time to the work as is possible. A crew is on the job every afternoon and evening and it is hoped that every member will do his part in this volunteer assistance.

Dedicatory plans in the meantime are going on and we hope to be able to present our readers with the official program soon.

CCC Camps Celebrating Anniversary

THIS IS CCC ANNIVERSARY WEEK

This is the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps in the U. S. and the occasion is being observed this week all over the land with special programs and social occasions. It is a real birthday occasion, enjoyed by the officers and enrollees, and by the public generally.

Nearby camps are making the most of the occasion by inviting the public to come and inspect the several camps. Camps Higgins Lake, AuSable and Eldorado, all of Crawford county and Camp Kalkaska have been holding open house all week and hundreds of people have had the privilege and pleasure of visiting the camps.

Many people who had never visited CCC camps were surprised at the magnitude of the places and at the big things that are being accomplished by the officers and men.

Camp Kalkaska had a pot-luck luncheon Saturday to which only women were invited. It was a pleasant occasion and the visitors enjoyed looking over the camp.

Tuesday that camp was host to the Kiwanis clubs of Grayling and Traverse City. This was men's night and of course was a very enjoyable occasion.

There was a large group of Kiwanians present from Grayling and also from Traverse City. Those who arrived early made tours of inspection to the several buildings in the camp, and were surprised at the work that is being done by the officers and enrollees.

At 6:30 they were guests of the officers at a banquet. Harold Cliff, senior foreman of the camp, a former well known Graylingite, was chairman of the program that followed.

Capt. C. A. Gerfer, commander of the camp, welcomed the visitors, which was responded to by Dr. J. F. Cook, president of the Grayling club. Mr. John C. DeCamp, junior forester, gave a very interesting resume of the accomplishments of the camp.

Of course, with Kiwanians present, there was a lot of singing. The camp Glee club and some of the enrollees entertained with songs and musical numbers. The Kalkaska band concluded the program with a number of band selections.

Camp Higgins Lake held open house Sunday. A few invited guests were entertained at luncheon when prime Virginia ham and all the good things that go with a luncheon were served. An inspection of the camp followed. The kitchen received first attention and the commodious refrigerators and ice boxes, store rooms, etc., bulging with supplies were viewed with amazement. The place is white enameled inside and everything is immaculately clean.

The barracks or sleeping quarters of the enrollees too were spic and span, with beds all made up as neatly as any woman could have them. The enrollees standing at the foot of their respective beds were dignified and neat in appearance and each seemed proud to be connected with the camp.

WBCM Broadcasting Station To Be Dedicated

The dedicatory program of Station WBCM, Bay City, will take place Sunday, April 10th, 2:00 to 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon. This is occasioned by the several events here listed:

1. Dedication of the recent increase in power from 500 watts to 1000 watts daytime.
2. Secondly, the addition of their staff of Mr. Lester M. Mitchell, formerly of WWP, as Program Director, who will have supervision of their new staff of announcers.

3. The appointment of Mr. S. W. Edwards, Radio Consultant of Detroit, as Supervising Manager.

4. The opening of new Offices at 104 Center Avenue, Bay City.

5. Dedication of their new Studios with all modern equipment.

The hospital looked inviting with its comfortable beds and every evidence was shown that the physical health of the enrollees is well guarded.

The education building showed a very orderly school room, complete with modern educational needs, excellent reference and other good books. A new building for educational work of a much larger magnitude is being constructed and will be ready for use in a few weeks.

The recreation building provides plenty of attraction for those who enjoy health-giving sports and entertainment.

The drafting building has a most complete layout for map making and drafting of other kinds. This is the drafting headquarters for all CCC camps in Michigan, where all work has to be checked up and passed upon.

A planned trip to the Higgins Lake nurseries was deferred because of the cold weather and strong wind blowing. Many were disappointed for this is a most interesting trip.

Camp Higgins Lake most creditably celebrated the fifth anniversary of the CCC Sunday. The entire week has been more or less a festival occasion.

Camp AuSable, located in the eastern part of the county, like all other camps, is observing the anniversary of the corps. On Saturday of this week the youngsters of Grayling and other communities will be invited to a kiddies party at the camp. It is expected that there will be a large crowd present.

Camp Luzerne, located in Oscoda county, a short distance east of Crawford county, held open house on Sunday, April 3rd. No doubt the visitors had an enjoyable time. In the evening refreshments were served.

Camp Luzerne was the first camp established in Michigan and of especial interest to Grayling people, Lieutenant (now captain) Russell E. Bates, son of the late Melvin A. Bates, and wife, was the commander.

The Fifth Anniversary of the founding of the CCC was fittingly and impressively observed at Camp Higgins Lake last Sunday.

Arriving guests registered at the Headquarters building where they were received in the Officers' Lounge for a relaxation period. At promptly 2:00 P. M., they were conducted to the Mess Hall where seats were provided for one hundred invited guests. During this dinner hour, the famous Saginaw Valley Bud Scott dance band from Bay City created and maintained a festive atmosphere which made the occasion one not easily forgotten.

Quickly following the dinner, the guests were conducted on a tour of inspection thru all the principal buildings of the camp area where the various facilities and functions were explained in detail. Following the tour of inspection a "Grudge" soft ball game was staged on the athletic field between Barracks One and Four in which the last named won by the close score of 11 to 10.

Later some of the nursery projects were visited in which millions of seedlings are grown to replenish our state and national forests. Jack Pine, White, and Norway pines are grown here from the seeds and when about three years old are distributed to all areas of the state so that the coming generations may enjoy growing and appreciate the deep pine forests which the present generation have been denied the privilege of seeing.

KALKASKA SELECTS TROUT KING

Mr. Art Winnie, Traverse City, has been selected to rule the Royal Kingdom of the Trout Country, for the year 1938. He succeeds Jack VanCoeveering, the gallant Trout King of 1937. Jack is Wildlife editor of the Detroit Free Press. He has served his followers of the Trout country well.

Art Winnie is a fine sportsman, a real trout fly fisherman. He started to trout fish when but a lad and has been an ardent follower of the nimble anglers. He is an expert fly tier, and if you ask Art to place a fly at a certain spot on the stream, you can rest assured he will place it. He has the reputation of being conservation-minded. He is 56 years old and has lived all his life in Traverse City. He operates one of the finest barber shops in northern Michigan.

A placard showing the exact number of days to the Trout season opening can be seen in Art's window thruout the whole year. He changes the number each day to correspond with the date.

Art will be crowned Trout King Friday afternoon, April 29th, at 2:30 o'clock amidst the splendor and pomp of the finest setting yet staged for any Trout King of the north. Beneath towering pines and upon a lofty throne thirty feet from the ground, the wonder of the north country, Winnie will mount this throne where also the Trout Queen will be holding the majestic chair. She also will be crowned at the same time. Robes, crowns, processions, vocal numbers, etc., will mark this lavish affair.

It is planned to make this one of the outstanding affairs ever undertaken. The Kalkaska Womens club are putting forth their efforts to make it the outstanding festival.

LOOSE TALK

Speaker George Schroeder appears all "het up" concerning the alleged remarks of John N. Fegan, until late a Soo justice of the peace, now suddenly and dizzily elevated to the position of chairman of the state tax commission. Since coming to Lansing Mr. Fegan has regularly, almost daily, sounded off in the press, over the air, and wherever he is permitted to speak. Not caring to discuss the small matters with which he dealt before coming to Lansing and having no knowledge of what he was supposed to do at Lansing, naturally he has spoken out of turn many times and said things which have embarrassed Governor Murphy and members of his administration forces.

Recently at Ann Arbor he charged that "representatives of the people were paid money to kill bills calling for the taxation of intangibles." Speaker Schroeder is now demanding that Tax Commissioner Fegan tell who and where or shut up.

Now Mr. Speaker, let's not take this thing too seriously. Of course Mr. Fegan has no knowledge of any such wrong as he imputed. He was sitting as a justice up in Sault Ste. Marie when the acts charged were supposed to have been committed. Certainly he could not have had personal knowledge of bribery. This is not the first time some thin-brained appointee has sounded off. Away back in 1931 one Charles Rubiner, then an assistant attorney general, was invited to speak before the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Lansing. He too impugned bad motives to legislators in general. A furor arose, a special legislative committee was appointed to force the young attorney to tell more or retract what he had said. The young sprout was scared stiff, freely admitted he knew of no acts of wrong doing but had supposed there were and so had taken the liberty to say so publicly. He apologized and the ruffled feelings of the members of the legislature were soothed but not before a lot of good news ink had been used.

Parenthetically, it might be reported that Mr. Rubiner went back to where Mr. Fegan started. He is now a justice of the peace.

It should also be explained that the so-called intangible bill under discussion by Mr. Fegan at Ann Arbor was not killed by the moneyed interests at all. It had their blessing, in fact. It was killed because the majority of the members of the senate and the house had become convinced that it would produce little in the way of net revenue but that it did provide a neat haven for the legal and secure protection of that type of wealth against either ad valorem or income taxation. It was considered too good a bargain for entrenched wealth and was sent back to committee for further study and considerable overhauling. Just another evidence that Mr. Fegan knows little of the subject on which he presumes to discourse so learnedly.—Ingham County News.

SCHOOL CARNIVAL AT FREDERIC, APRIL 8TH

The Carnival is to be held Friday, April 8th, and new events are forming as plans mature. No one should miss seeing the five-legged sheep imported for this occasion. There will also be a new penny game and marble game. The thrilling one-act play is well worth the price of admittance or if you prefer games you will find a variety to suit your mood. Drop in after the show for another hours' fun. Everyone likes to play Bingo, with many worthwhile and valuable prizes. Remember there is to be a door prize and several other prizes given away Free during the evening, and every paid admittance to the one-act play entitles the holder to a chance. Remember the date, Friday, April 8. Don't miss it.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the voters of Grayling township for their support in the election Monday. I will fulfill the duties of this office to the best of my ability.

Women of Ancient Greece

Whitened Face With Lead

The women of Greece were among the first to use white lead—lead carbonate—to whiten their faces. Although it was usually accompanied by unexplained cases of poisoning which often led to the death of the individual, this substance continued in popular use for many centuries. Soot was used to darken the eyebrows, and rouge was commonly made of vegetable substances, including seaweed and mulberry.

The toilet of the Greek lady began when she put on her face a mask of meal which remained there all night and in the morning was washed off with milk. It was a beauty mask, writes Virginia S. Eifer in "National History," guaranteed to remove blemishes and restore waning beauty. After the morning milk bath, the white lead powder was put on, and then the rouge, the eye-shadow, and the eyebrows. These latter were sometimes false.

As the Roman writer Petronius said: "The lady takes her eyebrows out of a little box." False or not, the lady fixed her eyebrows, submitted herself to the hairdresser's fingers, was dressed and heavily perfumed, and then was ready for the day, much of which had already passed in beautification.

Both men and women indulged in fancies for the hair. Blondes were popular in Greece, and while the rage for light-colored hair was at its height, any means was permissible to obtain and display a head of golden hair.

Memory of Louis XIV Is Always Keen in France

Although a republic, France remembers Louis XIV as one of the greatest monarchs of the past, for it was through him that the country received many of its artistic and architectural treasures. Because of their value to the republic, France devotes a fraction of its budget to maintaining and restoring the castles, gardens, churches, squares and other contributions of Louis XIV to the country.

Versailles palace is an achievement of the monarch which has remained a wonder of the world throughout the centuries. Important in French history of the past, the palace plays a major part in the life of the country, for it is there that the election of the president of the republic takes place.

France recalls the fact that Louis XIV gave the country its golden age in literature and art, that he enlarged the Louvre, helped create the Tuilleries gardens and did much to beautify the city of Paris.

On September 5, 1638, Louis XIV was born at St. Germain-on-Laye in the chateau begun by Henry II and completed by Henry IV. The room where the "sun king" was born still remains and is now a miniature Louis XIV museum.

Palms in Coat of Arms

Palm is used in the coat of arms of South Carolina. Legends have it that the Virgin Mary commanded the palm to bend its leaves over Christ during the trip into Egypt. Palms were known to have supplied tribes not only with food, but also oil, fuel and shelter. One of the superstitions pertaining to palms, notes a writer in the Rural New-Yorker, is that if one would make a cross of leaves he would be free from injury during a heavy storm. People in some sections of the country believe that it will drive mice away from granaries; that if leaves are eaten it will cure fever, or that if a palm leaf is put behind the picture of Virgin Mary, on Easter morning it will drive away all animals without bones.

The ladies and gentlemen of the Saturday Bridge club were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Joseph Saturday evening.

The dinner was served buffet style from a very attractively arranged table.

MISS MARY ESTHER SCHUMANN COMPLIMENTED

Mrs. C. G. Clippert opened her home, together with Mrs. Harry Conning, as co-hostess, to some fifty ladies at a tea and miscellaneous shower for Miss Mary Esther Schumann, who will be a May bride, Tuesday afternoon.

It was a very colorful scene as the ladies sat hemming various colored dusters and splashy figured tea-towels throughout the afternoon. Later, however, their interest was absorbed in the opening of the beautiful shower gifts, by the bride-elect. Little Miss Billyann Clippert was kept very busy supplying her with the attractively arranged packages from a pink be-ribboned tray.

The tea-table was covered with a lovely maderia cloth, centered with a crystal candelabrum holding yellow tapers while silver candelabra holding yellow tapers and a silver basket filled with yellow daffodils graced the buffet. Mrs. C. R. Keyport and Mrs. A. J. Joseph poured.

would be hard to beat. Fully 200 people participated in the pleasures of the evening. The dance hall was decorated in pink and white bays, the windows and lights being prettily draped. The orchestra was enclosed on the stage by lattice work. In one corner was a dimly lighted booth, where Ruth McCullough and Eleanor Streeter presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. M. A. Bates prepared the punch which was fine. Chas. Fehr, assisted by several of the Oddfellows was in charge of the decorations and deserves a lot of credit for the pretty ideas. The coffee for the occasion was prepared by Clarence Waters of Simon Bros. of Saginaw, one of the best chefs. A number of out-of-town guests were present from Bay City, Roscommon, West Branch, Frederic, and other places.

Green Fruit Not Cause of Your Stomach Pains

Do you believe that eating green fruit causes tummy-ache? Do you imagine that an ostrich, when frightened, buries his head in the sand? Would you say that one must feed a cold and starve a fever—or that beef tea is nourishing?

If you do, declares a writer in London Answers Magazine, you're wrong.

It's swallowing fruit in chunks that causes pain, and there's actually less nourishment in six large cups of beef-tea than in one slice of bread.

As for feeding colds—the familiar saying is a misquotation of the famous Dr. Abernethy, who declared: "If you feed a cold you shall have to starve a fever," meaning that stuffing a person laid up with a cold would soon bring on a fever.

Then there's the idea that cats see better in the dark. Actually, the time when cats see at their best is twilight, because their pupils expand far more than ours and are sensitive to the ultra-violet rays of the spectrum. But after dark they're just as blind as we are.

If you think your heart is on the left side, you're entertaining another fallacy. It happens to be neither left nor right, but almost in the middle.

Shaving doesn't make hair grow faster. Experts have measured under a microscope the length of hair that grows, day by day, between shaves, and have compared this rate with the daily growth in people who don't shave. The average is exactly the same.

"Fenianism," Scheme of Irish, Irish-Americans

"Fenianism" was a movement of Irish and Irish-Americans to separate Ireland from Great Britain and form it into an independent republic. The first of the Fenian leaders, James Stephens, failing to create an uprising in Munster, came to the United States to form a union of Irish who had left their country following the famine of 1847, and, with John O'Mahoney, organized the movement on this side of the Atlantic.

After the close of the Civil war, which cast thousands of Irishmen adrift, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News, Fenian societies—so named from a Gaelic title—were formed rapidly in many cities in the United States, and an invasion of Canada, known as the "Fenian raid," was planned and partially carried out in 1886. Between 500 and 600 men crossed the Niagara river on June 1, but were driven back, many of them being arrested by the United States authorities. Other attempts which were made during the year were checked before the men could leave the American side of the boundary line. On May 25, 1870, however, a small Fenian force crossed the frontier at Trout river, in the province of Quebec, only to be driven back by Canadian volunteers. Effective measures later were taken to quell the activities of the Fenians, because of the accompanying threat to American-British relations, and the movement passed into obscurity.

Chucker Partridge

The chucker partridge is a native of Asia, ranging from India north and west through Mongolia and into China. There are some 22 species of the birds, all closely related, but suited to different environments. They range from the lowest valleys to the highest mountain peaks and those that have been brought to America come from all varieties. The birds are large. Their size is between a Hungarian partridge and a pheasant. The average "Run" weighs 11 ounces, but these birds tip the scales at 20 ounces. They are a dove gray, with black bandings across the chest and on the tail. The beak and small wattles are blood red. The birds covey very much like a quail, being gregarious. In the spring, like quail, they pair off and build nests.

Famed Tower of London

Not one, but many towers compose the famed Tower of London. Normans built the fortress on the ruins of another fort constructed by Julius Caesar's legions. It has served since as the royal palace, a prison, and, finally, as sort of an historical museum and resting place for the crown jewels. Until 1834 it also housed the royal menagerie. Though many persons believe it still is an impregnable fort guarding London, its chief weapons are ancient swords and armor of historical value.

Dolls of the Ancients

"All the world loves a doll"—though what passes for a doll in some places wouldn't be recognized as such elsewhere. In parts of South America it's a bone, wrapped in a blanket if a boy, and in a petticoat if a girl. Boys and girls in Asia Minor play with pillows as "dolls." Ancient Greek dolls were sometimes made of wax. Those of old Egypt had clay beads for hair. Cortes, on his first conquest trip into Mexico, says the Washington Post, found Montezuma and his Aztec court playing with elaborate dolls.

Chair, Symbol of Authority

In ancient times the chair was a symbol of authority, common persons using chests, benches or stools as seats.

MERGANSER DUCK IS BIG OFFENDER

Evidence which would seem sufficient in any court to convict the merganser duck as a robber of fishermen has been sent from here to the state department of conservation at Lansing.

The evidence was comprised of 27 small fish, the majority of them bluegills, taken from the crops of two mergansers shot by Conservation Officer C. J. Cole near the municipal dam in the St. Joseph river.

A survey to determine the extent of the merganser's predation on fish species other than trout is now under way in the Kalamazoo river under the supervision of the institute for fisheries research, the fact-finding branch of the fish division of the conservation department.

DEER LOSE TAILS

Lansing, April 6—Discovery of 11 dead deer each with its tail torn off is being investigated by the department of conservation.

The deer were found in the AuSable river territory near the Isco game refuge. Three of the dead deer were inspected by George L. Egbert, manager of the refuge, and Don Zettle of the game division. Each was tailless and the caretaker of a hunting club preserve in the territory reported that all of the other deer also were minus their tails. The deer also showed evidence of having been attacked by dogs or coyotes, and pieces of the dismembered tails were found along the back trail.

Satisfactory explanation of the unusual discovery is lacking, although dogs have been known to attack cattle by biting their tails.

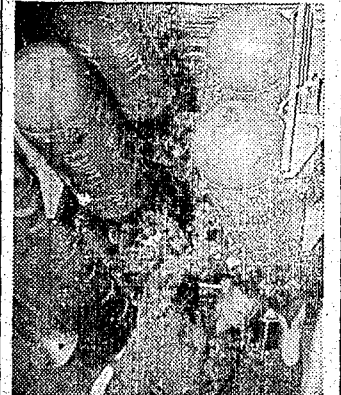

Daily Food Need

Since the body does not store as large reserves of vitamin C as it does of some other vitamins, it is wise to include in each day's meals a food high in vitamin C, such as tomatoes, oranges and fresh green vegetables.

Army Day In the Air

America observes Army day April 6 as Uncle Sam turns attention to his air corps, an important arm of defense. At March Field, Calif., aerial bombs are loaded with sand and water preparatory to defense maneuvers. The bottles contain smoke chemicals that leave a trail and enable the pilot to check his aim.

A mechanic adjusts 100-pound bombs beneath an army plane before takeoff for practice at Muroc Dry Lake.

While one branch of the army develops the offensive side of aerial warfare, another places emphasis on defensive tactics to combat enemy planes. At Fort Monroe, Va., this 1938-model soldier works on an anti-aircraft director.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

BILLY MINK MAKES A DISCOVERY

WHEN Billy Mink slipped through the hole under the floor of the shed at the back of the farmer's house, his one thought was to find a comfortable place for a nap. He found it without any trouble. You know Billy is not fussy and he can curl up and sleep almost anywhere. He had stuffed himself so with that fish he had found just outside of the hole that he felt too lazy to explore. So he picked out the first comfortable looking place he came to and there curled up for a nap.

When Billy awoke he couldn't first remember where he was. Then he recalled the fish and how he had slipped in under the shed floor. "Now I am here, I may as well find out all about this place," thought Billy and got to his feet. He yawned and stretched and then began to run around underneath the floor of the shed, using his nose as he always does. In no time at all a familiar scent tickled his nose. "Ah, ha!" exclaimed Billy Mink. "So this is where those rats came when they left the big barn! I'm not hungry, but I certainly would enjoy a good hunt. I haven't hunted anything bigger than a mouse for ever so long."

Away Billy raced with his nose to the ground, following the scent of a rat. It didn't take him long to find a nest under the shed floor. But there was no one in that nest. The rat smell was very strong, and Billy knew that rats had been there only a short time before. The fact is, the rats who owned that nest had discovered Billy Mink and had promptly moved into the house. Billy eagerly followed the trail. It led him to the hole which led in between the walls of the house. Without hesitating a second, Billy popped through, following the scent. It was a queer place. He had never been in such a place before. But Billy knew that where a rat could go he could go, and so he followed, climbing up between the walls of the house until at last he reached the attic.

He could hear the scampering of many feet, and he could hear the squeaks of fright, so he knew that the rats knew he was there. Once in the attic Billy found the rat scent everywhere. It was useless to try to follow with his nose because the rats had crossed and recrossed each other's paths so often that the trail was all mixed up.

But if Billy couldn't trust to his nose he could trust to his ears. The sound of scampering feet and the frightened squeaks told him where the rats were. His eyes blazed with the eager light of the hunter, and without even a glance at all the queer things in that attic, things such as he had never seen before, Billy kept on after those rats.

EMPLOYEE MUST HAVE SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER

All employees, even those engaged in casual or temporary employment, should have social security account numbers.

Don't put on your brakes, when you have a blow-out, until you are certain you have your car or truck under control. Then apply them gradually.

A blow-out, particularly on a front wheel and when you are driving at a high rate of speed, is one case in which jamming on the brakes might involve you in an accident that could be avoided by doing other things first. Grip the wheel firmly. Steer; don't think of anything but steering, at first. Brake pressure comes second.

Good rubber all around is the best insurance against blowouts.

The pedestrian is still the cause of numerous traffic deaths.

In 1937 almost fifty per cent of the people injured or killed in accidents involving automobiles were pedestrians. Many of these accidents were caused by people walking on the wrong (the right-hand) side of the road in rural communities. This does occur in spite of the great number of bulletins, warnings, and splendid newspaper editorials which have appeared on the subject.

Every school, community, club and civic organization ought to stress continually the importance of pedestrians' obeying traffic rules and regulations.

Walk with the semaphore lights. Do not jaywalk. Do not cross in the middle of a block. If you must walk on highways or rural roads, walk on the left side of the road, facing the on-coming cars. These and many other warnings should be obeyed by all pedestrians.

Stop! Look! Listen! Live longer!

April's weather dispenser has been playing some peculiar pranks during the last few days. With lower Michigan and eastern and western states blanketed in heavy snow, here in Grayling the ground is bare. Detroit reports a six-inch snowfall while Chicago boasts of 8 1/2 inches, and temperature ranging around 24. A heavy snowstorm here for a brief time Sunday night covered the ground but by afternoon of the following day it was all gone. Temperature here this morning (Thursday) was about 24.

The Michigan Mirror

Non-partisan News Letter
Michigan Press Association
By GENE ALLEMAN

Lansing—Taking the courts and schools "out of politics" are among the new issues before Michigan.

The State Bar of Michigan, representing the legal profession of the state, is sponsoring a constitutional amendment to authorize an appointive system for selection of members to the State Supreme court. Voters will be asked to amend the constitution at our coming November election.

The spectacle of a supreme court judge taking part in a political campaign has been repugnant to the bar. Justice would be served by adoption of an appointive system, say the advocates.

Educators take the same attitude regarding the state superintendent of public instruction. In fact, the Michigan Educational association is sponsoring a constitutional amendment for 1939 whereby the state board of education would appoint the superintendent for a four-year term. The same logic holds true: Why should the head of the state educational system deal with politicians in order to get and hold his office? Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, present office-holder, is leading the reform crusade to abolish his own office—"believe it or not!"

Relief in Michigan
Michigan's economic life today is primarily industrial.

More than 56 per cent of our population is concentrated in 14 industrial cities.

More than two-thirds of all employed persons are engaged in the fabrication and distribution of goods. In other words, the average Michigan resident is not self-employed, but is dependent upon someone else for wages.

Agriculture was dominant in the state until the turn of the century when mass production, new industrial techniques, and new methods of financing industrial operations combined to produce a tremendous growth of industry.

The importance of agriculture has decreased with each decade. The trend has been from the farm to industrial cities.

From 1880 to 1930, the total number of persons employed by others increased from 569,000 to 1,927,000—a gain of 239 per cent! In any study of economic cause and effect, here is an important fact.

Worker's Insecurity.

The rapid expansion of industry in Michigan has increased the problem of unemployment. Today, we find the industrial cities confronted with a gigantic relief burden that cannot be possibly carried alone by the local taxpayer.

Nearly a half million workers have been added to payrolls of manufacturing and mechanical industries since 1900. The increase was 161 per cent.

The industrial revolution in Michigan also witnessed the shift from small shops employing a limited number of relatively skilled workers to gigantic factories employing hundreds of thousands of workers under one roof.

On the assembly line the element of mechanical skill is secondary in importance. The skilled artisan has been replaced by the semi-skilled worker who has only one repetitive task—making a machine do its job. That does not make for security.

secondary in importance. The skilled artisan has been replaced by the semi-skilled worker who has only one repetitive task—making a machine do its job. That does not make for security.

Personal Contact

In the small factory there exists a personal contact between the boss, the employer, and his workers.

The change in Michigan's industrial picture from small industrial plants to gigantic factories covering many acres of land has removed that personal contact for hundreds of thousands of workers. In 1929 more than 48 per cent of all industrial workers were employed in plants having more than 1000 wage earners.

Because of this concentration of workers in industrial centers, Michigan has been among the first states to feel the effects of prosperity or depression. The automobile, a highly specialized product, has brought with it a problem of insecurity. Figures for the Detroit area show that during the year 1920-31 two out of every five factory workers were jobless in the month of lowest employment in each given year. What is the answer?

State Problem

William Haber, professor of economics at the University of Michigan, sees no immediate solution to the threat of industrial unemployment. In fact, he forecasts that it will "probably continue to be serious for many years." He adds: "The proportion of its (Michigan) workers who are operating their own businesses or farms is smaller than in most other states, the trend to large scale industry is further advanced, and stable employment is rendered difficult by the dominance of a single industry—a automobile manufacture—with its dependence on seasonal markets and a highly unstable demand for its products."

This is no Pollyanna picture. But it must be faced. It is a challenge to our capitalistic system.

Unemployment Insurance

Because Michigan had a higher percentage of unemployment during the years 1930-33 than in any other states, unemployment insurance has become an important consideration.

Any insurance plan of this type cannot give full protection to the worker who is idle for long periods.

But it can be effective during the first five or six months of the jobless period.

As the bulk of unemployment arises out of big industrial plants, removal of the present exemption in the state law would merely increase the total funds available. In other words, the small employer would be taxed to help solve the problem of the big employer.

Perhaps this is as it should be—being our brother's keeper, so to speak.

If so, should it not be put on that basis?

(By Elliott Hughes)

What I know about Bobwhite quail has been obtained by study and observation and reading the opinions of others.

I know quail are not one half as plentiful today as they were in the same territories 28 years ago when there was an open season of 45 days and no bag limit.

I know there are more males than females, and for that reason I am convinced that when hunting is banned the only time any young quail are hatched is when the mated male does the incubating.

Herbert L. Stoddard of the U. S. A. Biological Dept., in his book "Five Year Investigation of Bobwhite Quail in Georgia and Florida" says: "Data from shooting and trapping of banded quail throw some light on sex ratio and reveal that the hens have a shorter life expectation than the males. Retrapping of banded quail in the spring of 1925 showed a ratio of 125 males to 100 females. The ratio of banded quail shot the following shooting season was 159 males to 100 females, and in the spring of 1926 the ratio of re-trapped banded quail was 142 males to 100 females."

In all my quail hunting, I always found at the end of each day's hunt, I had at least 3 males to every 2 females, and one day I had 7 males and only one female.

The males lead the flock and are the first to fly when danger approaches, consequently the males stand the brunt of the shooting, for a quail hunter always shoots at the first birds up.

In early days quail were very plentiful and were hunted for food by the many predators that then existed, and in their fights for mates many males became easy prey, especially for hawks. This was nature's way of maintaining a biological balance of sex. Stoddard says: "It is not uncommon to see two obviously tired Bobwhites running heavily down a path, one in dogged pursuit of another which he had vanquished in combat, both oblivious of everything but the matter in hand."

One year I observed a flock of 11 quail—7 males and 4 females—and there weren't any young quail hatched. One spring I saw a male quail chasing another, and then hurry back to chase another one, while another male was courting his mate. After putting the three males to flight, he alertly followed his mate while she went serenely about her business of looking for something to eat as if nothing of importance had happened.

Quail are like chickens in many respects. If chickens were let run wild and no roosters killed, no one would expect any young to be hatched. A captive wild quail will lay 20 eggs, while quail reared in captivity will lay 65 to 100, and a record of 142 eggs was laid by one quail in one season.

At one quail farm four males were placed with 12 females, and the eggs were fertile, but the egg yield was not quite so large as in the pens where there were only one pair. Stoddard placed one male with 12 females and many eggs were fertile, but claims the test was not fair as the females were used as decoys to trap unmated wild male quail to be released with incubator hatched baby quail.

Stoddard claims that after quail are mated The Investigation did not find any mated male that whistled Bobwhite, but that the unmated male whistled Bobwhite persistently all day long. 602 nests were observed and studied and every fifth nest was incubated by the mated male. (It takes 23 days to incubate quail eggs). Stoddard also claims that quail hatch only one brood each year and the reason baby quail are found late in the season is because something happened to the first nest.

As an experiment I would like to see all quail trapped in one county in the southern part of Michigan, and the male quail killed off to a ratio of one male to three females. If this were done every year, I predict in three years time that the county would be overrun with strong healthy quail. This experiment could be tried out in a township or on a smaller scale; on several farms having good quail cover. In all fairness to everyone concerned, I feel this experiment should be made.

Grange Notes

The Grangers will soon be starting the basement for their new hall.

Mr. Nelson Corwin has given $1.00 to pay for cement blocks.

We wish to thank Mrs. Connine for starting this Cement Block fund about six months ago. Since that time a great many have bought blocks. Every block helps the cause along.

The Ladies of the Grange are planning on an Easter sale, April 16. Baked goods and Bazaar.

Hot Cross Buns Are Legendary

Whence came the hot cross bun Americans eat annually on Good Friday?

Several legends surround this institution, most of them apparently founded on the following explanation:

The early Greeks offered to Apollo, Diana and other gods, at the spring festival, corresponding to Easter in the Christian church, cakes or "bous," round with small horns. The round feature represented the moon, on which was placed four quarters, representing the stages of the moon.

The Christian church later adopted the custom, making buns of the same dough kneaded for the host, or bread or wafer used in the sacrament of holy communion.

Remember the Senior play "The Wary Ape", April 15. A rollicking comedy-farce of many amusing situations.

The proofs for the Senior pictures arrived last Friday and the Seniors are busy criticising this or that portrait and trying to decide in which they look the best.

The election dinner sponsored by the Seniors Monday, proved very profitable as many attended. The Senior class and sponsor wish to thank all those contributing their time and also of food to be served.

Six weeks' tests are over again and the students are anxiously waiting for the report cards to follow. The time is drawing near when graduation and promotion is due and marks are beginning to mean a little more. Only one more six-weeks' period remains before graduation.

Chevrolet Establishes Unique Business School

William E. Hoffer, general sales manager of Chevrolet, has established a School of Modern Merchandising and Management for the sons of Chevrolet dealers, which is probably the first time that a large concern has undertaken the task of teaching a second generation the business. The first group of 27 dealers' sons, drawn from every section of the country, is shown here visiting the General Motors Research department under the personal guidance of Charles F. Kettering, vice-president of General Motors in charge of research, and inventor of the self-starter.

WE THINK that this attractive fisherwoman adds to the beauty of the State Highway Department's mural exhibit used at the Detroit Exposition and at Saginaw's Outdoor Show. Too early for real fish so Miss Child is carrying a load of East Michigan Tourist Association's Irish trout made for just such a purpose.
